SHARE THE ROAD

May is National Motorcycle Safety Awareness Month. Law enforcement is reminding motorists to be aware of increased motorcycle traffic on roadways. While there has been an increased number of crashes, injuries and fatalities since 2007 across the country, in Grant County these numbers have actually decreased over the last two years. Last year, Kentucky had 1,881 crashes involving motorcycles with 80 of those crashes resulting in death. Of those, 46 were not wearing helmets.

Following the talent show, the stage will feature a variety of entertainment throughout the day. Derby Idol Junior is scheduled from 11 to 11:30 a.m., with Derby Idol set from 1:30 to 2 p.m. Childrens' events will include a bouncy house, giant slide, obstacle course, cow milking game, face painting, trackless train, pony rides, 4-H petting zoo, pirate ship rise and games. ## FIRE FIGHT

Funding battle continues

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

What's next? After several proposals, countless meetings and endless debate, the future of funding for fire and ambulance service in Grant County is still cloudy. However, things may get a little clearer next week. The Grant County Fiscal Court unanimously approved a first reading April 16 of an ordinance for subscriber fees for fire departments. A final reading will be voted on during the May 7 meeting at the Grant County Courthouse. The cost of the dues, which residents of Dry Ridge and Williamstown would be exempt from, would be $25 for the first year. The fee would be put on the tax bills mailed to residents in the fall. They would have to pay their tax bill in full before filling out a form asking for a refund of their fire subscription dues. Fire chiefs would submit an annual report to the fiscal court that

Williamstown man dies when pickup crashes

Walter H. Hyden, 36, of Williamstown, died after his 2004 Dodge pickup truck wrecked around 11 p.m. on April 30 on Cordova Road. Hyden was pronounced dead at the scene by Grant County Coroner Robert McDaniel. Police believe Hyden was headed to work at DHL and lost control of the truck, possibly due to the heavy rains in the area or a medical condition. Grant County Sheriff Chuck Dills said Hyden ran off the left side of the roadway, traveled 100 feet in a ditch before going airborne and crashing through the side of a barn. McDaniel said Hyden died as a result of blunt force trauma. The accident remains under investigation pending autopsy results. Hyden is survived by his wife, Billie Jo. An obituary can be found on page 7.

VOLUNTEER OF THE YEAR 2012

Dry Ridge man puts heart, soul into serving community

By Matt Birkholtz
Staff Writer

Charlie Conley has been a volunteer firefighter for the Dry Ridge Fire Department for 33 years and this year was recognized as the Grant County Volunteer of the Year at the Grant Chamber of Commerce annual banquet April 21. "It made me proud," Conley said. "It made me appreciate everything I have done here." Conley, who has also worked as a truck driver and welder, came to the DRFD in 1979 and currently is the safety chief for the department. He was drawn into joining after a neighbor of his introduced him to it. The day started at 8 a.m. for Conley. First he checks the fire trucks, making sure they are ready, by looking at the oil and gas gauges, making sure the medication is in the trucks. Conley is all about helping others. "I get joy out of knowing I have helped someone and helping the community out," Conley said. While waiting for the next call, Conley washes the ambulance in the driveway of the department. He described some of the highlights of his career as a firefighter and some of the low moments in his life. In 1983, there were two major fires in Williamstown, one month apart from each other. On Nov. 30, 1983, the Wigginton building had a fire break out in the basement and eventually shoot up into the attic. More firefighters were called to the roof, including Conley and current Dry Ridge Fire

PERSONALLY SPEAKING

Put up your dukes - let’s fight!

I hate cancer! It’s ugly and sneaky and sucks (mom, please forgive my use of that word, but that’s just how I feel.)

Cancer has always been a dirty word in my family, mostly because my mom lost five of her eight brothers to various forms of the disease.

Growing up I heard the word – cancer – used in hushed tones, almost as if my mom and her sisters were looking over their shoulder to see if it was like a boogeyman sneaking up on them.

My sister was diagnosed with cancer when I was a teenager. She refused to talk about it and had surgery without me even knowing it. Thankfully, she beat cancer.

I really began to think a lot about cancer when I saw it take my cousin, a beautiful woman in the prime of her life. She was kind and funny until the cancer moved from her lymph nodes to her brain and bones. Then she became weak, tired and finally she couldn’t fight anymore and she died. She was in her early 30s and then she was just gone.

In 2009, my stepfather was diagnosed with lung cancer. We went to countless doctors. He had surgery and was pronounced cancer free, but cancer wasn’t done.

In March 2010, the cancer was back with a vengeance and had ravaged his body. The doctors told us that they couldn’t cure him but with chemotherapy they’d buy us some time.

As we traveled to weekly chemo treatments, we often ran into my niece, Nicole, who as a mother of two young children, and seemingly the picture of health, was taking radiation treatments to battle her colo-rectal cancer diagnosis.

For my dad, he was always hungry right after his treatment and his favorite stop was Penn Station. I put them on speed dial and the steak and cheese hoagie was always hot and ready when we stopped to get it.

But the next day was another matter. First came the nausea, followed often times by confusion and weakness. My dad got paler and leaving the house became a chore.

On the bright side, we were told the chemo, despite the horrible effects it had on him, was working.

Ron seemed to rally and actually gained a little weight. He smiled a little more and we kept fighting. Dragging an oxygen tank with us became second nature and I could change out a bottle almost as fast as a NASCAR team can change a set of tires.

In June, he got sick again.

From his hospital bed, his hands bent with the arthritis that pained him, he held our hands and told us not to cry and not to worry because he wasn’t afraid of death and he knew his next home would be better than this one.

He even managed a weak smile and told us he loved us.

Three days later, he left us, peacefully, on June 26.

But cancer wasn’t finished with my family. While my dad was fighting cancer, my only brother was diagnosed with cancer. I watched a man, who had raised his children, retired from a career with the railroad, who was now ready to kick back, fish, garden and enjoy his grandchildren, wither before my eyes.

His cancer diagnosis came in late May and on September 18, 2010, cancer took him away from us. The big strapping man I’d always been a little intimidated by shrank to less than 100 pounds. He had to have help getting in and out of bed and even holding a straw to take a few sips of water. Then, he was gone too.

Just a few weeks after that, my dear, sweet cousin, Horace Ray Luther, died. Cancer invaded his brain and spread to the rest of his body. He, too, fought, but in the end, the cancer was too strong.

Late last year, I got a call from an old college friend. Through the tears, she told me one of our other friends had been diagnosed with rectal cancer. Angie, one of the sweetest and kindest people I’ve ever had the pleasure to know, is still battling and so far, despite the pain, weakness and seemingly never-ending treatments, she’s winning.

Just a couple of weeks ago, my Aunt Dolly, who was so kind and loving to her family, lost her battle with lung cancer.

I hate cancer and now you know why.

I’ve watched it take wonderful, kind, decent people and just wear them down to nothing but a bag of bones.

At the 2012 Grant County Chamber of Commerce banquet, I was given a Community Service Award for my involvement in a variety of activities such as the animal shelter, Halloween in the Park, the Candidates’ forums, but especially for my volunteer work with the American Cancer Society. I was moved to tears by the award and humbled by the recognition. I deeply appreciate those who thought me worthy of the award.

I was taught that giving back to your family and community is just what you do. I don’t do these things for a pat on the back. I honestly do them because it’s the right thing to do.

Cancer is ugly. It would be easy to throw in the towel and let cancer think it had won, but I’m too stubborn and I’m going to fight.

How you ask? I’m going to keep on supporting the Grant County Relay For Life by purchasing raffle tickets from the teams and making an effort to attend their bake sales and luncheons. I’m going to stay up 12 hours at the event on June 1 at Grant County Park and I’m going to keep on fighting.

My dad looked at me from his death bed and said, “I’m sorry, babe. I won’t be at the relay and I won’t get my (survivor) medal.”

I told him it was OK because as long as I was able I’d walk for him. Won’t you join me on Friday, June 1?

Let’s show cancer that we’re not going to throw in the towel.

A WORD FROM OUR READERS . . .

Mayor invites public to visit ‘new’ park

I would like to invite the public to visit Webb Park. Two new play centers and swings have been recently added. The improvements were made possible because of a grant the city received from KaBOOM! and generous donations from the community. Donors for the project are: Sue Wood, Dorothy Atلمان, Bob Perry, Storme Vanover, Randy Middleton, Dr. Michelle Willoby, Terry Peoples, Roy Osborne, Lamar Fowler, Laura McClanahan, Chuck Hudson, Dale Caskey, Elliston Stanley Funeral Home, Vicki Agee, Les Whalen, Al Rich, Crystal Fryman, Rick Skinner, Kentucky Federal, Williamstown Elementary, Stanley Woodyard, Hale Contracting, Precision Dental, Grant County Drugs, Williamstown Women’s Club, Doug Beckham, Kevin Gibson, Williamstown Independent School, Williamstown Kiwanis, Ruby Vallandingham, Ed

Gabbert, Wanda Hammons, FFLAG, State Farm, St. Elizabeth, Grant County Oil, Carol Whaley, United Way, Forcht Bank, Skinner Furniture and Vision 2015.

Over 85 volunteers worked Saturday, April 14 on the clean-up and building of the play centers. I would like to thank the Boy Scouts and Grant County Baseball Team for their work that day. Bring the family and play at Webb Park.

Rick Skinner
Mayor of Williamstown

Webb endorses Wanda Hammons

I am writing to offer my whole-hearted support for Wanda Crupper Hammons, a Democratic candidate for state representative of the 61st district.

I have known Wanda for over 20 years, first in a professional capacity and more recently as a neighbor and friend. Wanda holds strong family values and a deep love and commitment to the citizens of Grant County. She demonstrates her passion for service to this community daily in her jobs as an EMT and a firefighter.

As state representative, she will represent the people of the 61st district honorably and ensure that our voice is heard in the state capitol.

Wanda was born with politics and community service in her blood. Her father, Clay Crupper, served as a state representative for 19 years and now Mayor of Dry Ridge. Wanda is being endorsed by Royce Adams, who is retiring from his post as state representative this year after 20 years.

Wanda will carry on the work begun by these mentors and will proudly support the citizens of Gallatin, Grant and Owen Counties. Please join me in sending Wanda Crupper Hammons to represent us in Frankfort.

DOWN AND DIRTY

Peonies long-lived in the garden

A couple of weeks ago, in mid-April, one of the prettiest flowers in the garden started to bloom. This great cut-leaf Japanese peony, Paeonia tenuifolia, opened its simple ruby-colored petals to reveal bright yellow stamen. The finely cut foliage, reminiscent of the most finely cut foliage of a Japanese maple, allows the plant to be interesting in the mixed border the rest of the growing season, too.

There are four peony classifications based on bloom type: single peonies have one or two rows of petals with centered yellow stamen; semi-double peonies have three to four whorls of petals with stamens that appear randomly throughout the bloom; double forms have ruffled petals that fill the center; and Japanese peonies (also called anemone-form because of their anemone-like appearance) which have single or semi-double flowers with yellow petal-like stamens in the center.

Cadillac of peonies

Most garden-variety peonies bloom in May but you can extend the season with some earlier blooming species, including many of the Japanese types. My Dad used to call the tree peony the “Cadillac of peonies.” Any serious peony connoisseur must have a collection of tree peonies. Unlike the herbaceous variety, the tree peony is a woody shrub sporting enormous blooms in late April and into May (depending on the season, earlier this year) Both tree and herbaceous peonies are long-lived in the garden.

Peonies are often sold as bare-root plants; which works to the consumer’s advantage, really, because you can see exactly what you are getting. When it comes to peony blooms it is all about the eyes and the roots reveal the story. You want plants that have at least three thick roots with three to five red “eyes”; these eyes or buds become the stems of the peony foliage, which should sport blooms in the spring.

Jeneen WICHE

Weekend Gardener

Late bloomer

Here in lies the conundrum with peonies: sometimes they can be finicky bloomers. Newly planted peonies often take two to three years to bloom, longer if you have less than three eyes. Problems can also be blamed on planting depth, which is the most common culprit. The red “eyes” should not be much deeper than one and a half inches beneath the soil surface. The roots of peonies need to be sufficiently “chilled” during the winter months in order to set bud.

There are some fungal problems that adversely affect peony blooms, as well. Botrytis blight is not uncommon and is evidenced by spotty foliage and flower buds that dry up before fully forming. Using a fungicide labeled for use on peonies can control the fungus that causes the blight. Make the application in the early spring just as the foliage begins to emerge. As with most blooming plants, a minimum of six hours of direct sun light a day is required for peonies to bloom. Afternoon shade, during the hottest part of the day, is desirable and will protect the foliage from sun scorch and the blooms from excessive fading, plus they’ll last longer. Deadhead blooms as they fade and this will help the plant maintain form. Peonies so often splay out after spring rains so deadheading and using plant support rings are nearly a must to keep them looking good in the garden.

Step-by-step

Select a sunny, well-drained location with at least a three-foot diameter to allow the foliage and root system plenty of room for growth. Crowded plants never do well because they compete for moisture and nutrients. Dig a deep hole so you can amend the soil by adding compost. Peonies in good soil do great, peonies in poor soil still seem to perform well enough in my experience so they are not as finicky as their reputation suggests.

Peonies do best if they are left undisturbed but if you do need to divide the ideal time is in the fall, I have dug out of season to no disastrous affects, however.

WES to host Camp Invention

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

Williamstown Elementary students once again can become the next Thomas Edison in a hands-on summer camp.

For the second consecutive year, WES will host Camp Invention from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. June 18-22.

“We received only positive feedback from kids and parents,” said Sonya Linder, Williamstown Middle School enrichment teacher.

WES students who will be in first through sixth grades during the 2012-13 school year can register for the camp.

The cost is $215 and includes breakfast and lunch.

Students who register before May 15 will receive a $15 early registration discount.

The five-day program will feature hands-on classes featuring Magnetropolis, where students can build ships and explore magnetic power; Inventeureka, studying time travel and building a new invention; I Can Invent: Balloon Burst, where participants get to take apart a broken machine and Action and Adventure Games, where students will create their own game.

Camp Invention was created in 1990 by the National Inventors Hall of Fame Foundation.

To register for Camp Invention, go to www.campinvention.org or call Linder or Melinda Evans at 824-3760.

WMS students, soldiers bond through letters

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

Williamstown Middle School students have gained pen pals in their quest to become better writers.

A project in Response to Intervention (RIT) classes designed to help struggling students led to letters being written to soldiers from the 4th Platoon, Centurion Company based at Lewis-McChord Base in Seattle, Wash.

“We were looking for a way to have the childrens’ writing be meaningful and have a purpose,” said Karen Edwards, WMS guidance counselor. “The first thing I thought of was writing to some of the soldiers. Having the writing be real for the students and giving them an audience was great. When they just write on their own, I just think they have a more difficult time. But, if they know an actual person is going to see what they’re writing, it all of a sudden becomes more flavorful and detailed.”

The first letters were sent around Christmas and the students sent one again for Valentine’s Day.

They recently received individual responses from First Lt. John Benson and his soldiers.

“I wrote about how I don’t agree with war, in general,” said eighth grader Morgan Hearn, who called the writing experience interesting. “He told me not to worry about sounding like a hippie or an activist and that the most important freedom is the freedom to make up your own mind.”

Seventh grader Chaz Rayburn has a desire to be in the military so the letters were a unique opportunity for him.

“I want to be in the Army, but sometimes I have second thoughts,” he said. “I asked him about that. He said I had a lot of time before I decide what I’m going to do after school. I want to go to college first.”

The students were respectful and expressed gratitude in their writings, said Tina Withorn, a WMS social studies teacher.

“They were very genuine,” she said. “They really needed helped with their writing skills and the soldiers needed letters. So, I feel like it was a win-win.”

When the soldiers sent response letters to the students, they also gave them a photograph of the platoon that has been put on a bulletin board at the school.

WMS English and social studies teacher Whitney Rexroat agreed that the project was beneficial.

“It was a great activity for the students because it personalized the war for those who have not been affected by it as much,” she said. “They had the opportunity to write to real soldiers. It was even more effective when the students saw their picture and got a response.”

The students have looked forward to receiving the response since they sent their letters out, said RTI coordinator Carleen Ficker.

“So many of the soldiers have become role models to them,” she said. “One student wouldn’t let us touch his letter. It was in a folder and we could only touch the folder.”

The platoon recently discovered they will be returning to Afghanistan shortly for another tour.

However, the students plan on continuing their letters.

“It’s sad to say, but more than 70 percent of our military do not receive letters,” Ficker said. “The things they asked for were to pray for them and continue to send letters.”

Two Grant County High School students head to Speech, Drama nationals

By Matt Birkholtz
Sports Writer

Acting has played a major role for two Grant County High School seniors and they will get one more opportunity to shine in the spotlight, as they head to California for a national tournament May 10.

Alexandra Young and Jacob Ewing compete in the duo interpretation competition.

The routine involves them only getting to make eye contact or touch during their introduction. From then on for the 10-minute act, they can't touch or look at one another, while acting in a three-foot radius.

"That was a struggle in itself," Young said. "We worked hard on it. "We are fortunate to be going to nationals."

Finding a routine was also challenging for the duo.

"I find the pieces for us and I am the one that cuts it down to the requirements," Ewing said. "It's extremely hard because you have to keep the plotline the same. You have to keep every part in the story, but shorten it."

Ewing said they looked at hundreds of acts before finding one for competition on a website.

Once they cut it down to the required limit, Young and Ewing hit it off performing throughout the season and scoring high enough to qualify for the national tournament for the third time.

"Working together has been easy for Jacob and I," Young said. "We have known each other for a long time and we know each other. When we perform that comes out in our performance and I feel that is an advantage to us out on stage."

Both Young and Ewing have performed the duo interpretation for three years and have known each other since elementary school.

"We have been doing it for years," Ewing said. "I am going to miss it. It has been probably my most favorite thing I have done in high school."

Ewing got interested in acting when he was in middle school and a group came in to perform for his class. It all became history after that.

"I also like to make people laugh," Ewing said. "When I saw that group, I just knew that is what I want to do."

For Young, acting has been a major part of her life since she was 3 years old and would act in front of the television at home.

"Acting has been something I have really enjoyed," Young said. "It is my sport. It's fun, exciting and is always different. It is always changing and exciting coming from that background."

Both are planning to attend the University of Louisville. Young plans to get a degree in Spanish with the aspiration to attend law school and become a school attorney in the future. Ewing plans to study mechanical engineering. Neither one ruled out acting in their future.

"I have put some thought into it, but I may minor in theater once I get comfortable in college," Young said.

"I want to pursue a stand up career while I am in college," Ewing said.

GCHS speech and drama coach Jackie Young is in her first year of being the coach and is the mother of Alexandra. Young said she has enjoyed coaching the speech and drama team, including Young and Ewing.

"It's real," Jackie said. "That's what all of the members of the team do and for Alexandra and Jacob to represent GCHS this month is great."

Young and Ewing will be competing May 11-13 at the National Individual Events Tournament of Champions in Union City, Calif.

"I am excited about going," Ewing said. "I am expecting big things from this tournament and to have a good showing at nationals."

WES student celebrates birthday with tornado donations

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

Most 7-year-olds may want an action figure or remote control car for their birthday, but Teagan Moore only wanted to help.

The Williamstown Elementary first grader turned 7 three days after the tornado devastated homes and families in Crittenden.

Teagan, who waited out the storm with his family in the basement of their Dry Ridge home, saw the images of damage in Crittenden and Piner.

"It made me feel sad for the people who got their houses tore up," he said.

Teagan's birthday party planned for March 11 became an opportunity to lend a helping hand to those impacted by the storm.

"He had watched all the footage on TV and everything," said Tim Moore, Teagan's father. "He went through the tornado and the wind at the house. We got talking about what we wanted to do for a birthday party. It just came up that he really had enough gifts and it would be neat for his buddies to bring in gifts for the storm victims."

Invitations for Teagan's party asked attendees for donations to the American Red Cross instead of presents.

"I just wanted to be real nice and be caring," Teagan said.

Twenty-five friends and WES classmates provided bottled water, soap, wash cloths, shampoo and other items for the victims, along with $500.

"I didn't think I was going to get that much stuff," Teagan said. "It made me feel happy that I was able to give the stuff to those people. I felt sad for the people."

Teagan toured the disaster relief shelter with his dad and sister when they dropped off the truckload of donations. Seeing his son help others was exciting, said Tim Moore.

"The storm was pretty traumatic for him," he said. "So, it was a relief to do this. It turned out pretty well. He had seen something like this before. One of his buddies had a birthday party and they did donations for the animal shelter. I think that's how he got the idea. Plus, grandma still bought some gifts."

Former UK basketball player takes over Demons

By Matt Birkholtz
Sports Writer

Grant County sits inside Big Blue Nation. For Williamstown, it will be a spot on the map for the beginning of former University of Kentucky basketball player Roger Harden's high school basketball coaching career as he was named head coach April 30, in front of the team in the Williamstown High School gym. Harden stressed to the team, that this isn't going to be about him, but for them. "Williamstown is not a stopping point for me to just come in and leave, I am here for the long haul," Harden told the team. "I am not a screamer or a yeller. I am a motivator and will teach you the game of basketball. Basketball has been my life and I am now one of you here at Williamstown."

“Williamstown is not a stopping point for me to just come in and leave, I am here for the long haul.”

- Roger Harden
Williamstown basketball coach

Harden told the team that this is their time. "There is always a generation that comes through a school and represents their school in a way not seen in a long time," Harden said. "Every now and then you get a group that takes the game and spends a lot of time with it and make themselves better because of it." Moving back closer to Indiana and Northern Kentucky played a factor in Harden coming to Williamstown, but the knack for wanting to coach also drew him. "It was about two or three years ago, I wanted to get into institutionalized basketball," Harden said. "I stayed with the game and family lives up here, so we are excited about that." Harden, who played for UK from 1982-1986 and was drafted in the NBA by the Los Angeles Lakers, takes over a program that is losing five seniors, but will have a core of juniors returning to the team in the 2012-13 season, including guard David Jump. "I think it is great for the program," Jump said. "It is exciting as a player to be able to get the knowledge that he has and learn from him the game of basketball. Anytime you have a former UK basketball player as a coach, it is just a bright thing for Williamstown." WHS athletic director Tommy West was surprised when he saw Harden's application in with the 35-40 applications for the position. "He sent it in and I was amazed by it," West said.

"I called him and asked him if it was legit and you put it out there and it just fell into our laps. It was just the right time, right place for us." Harden is replacing Steve Sigmon as coach. Sigmon is retiring from teaching and coaching after 40 years. Sigmon said it was time for him to step down and is excited to see what Harden can do to improve the program. "That was one of the stress issues when I stepped down, was who will step in," Sigmon said. "When we read his resume and that he was genuine about it, this can be an icon for Williamstown. To me, it was no-brainer." One area that Harden is working on improving is the weight and conditioning of the team. He has called on his son, Joe Harden, to come up with some workouts to help strengthen the team. Joe Harden has trained UK players for the NBA, including Michael Kidd-Gilchrist and Anthony Davis. "When you put the hard work in, it's amazing what weights can do for a player today," Harden said. "These players are going to get a good workout plan." Joe Harden said he hopes to be in Williamstown as much as possible from Lexington to help improve the players physically.

Lady's Day at the Range

It's not unusual to hear shooting coming from the Lloyd Wildlife Management Area in Crittenden though recently it was not the normal crowd. Over 50 women, some as young as 13, attended Lady's Day at the Range, an event hosted by the Northern Kentucky Straight Shooters Association. The event is hosted each year in an effort to provide experience and hands on instruction to women interested in shooting sports. Volunteers from the club, mostly men, were on hand to make lunch and offer instruction on how to shoot and the various types of firearms available. The event was free and firearms, ammunition and targets were all provided by the club and its members. The NKSSA offer several instructional classes on firearms throughout the year as well as participate in trap shooting and pistol competitions. To find out more about events that occur on the Lloyd WMA you can visit fw.ky.gov or the find the "Northern KY Straight Shooters Association" on Facebook.

HARDEN

Strength and conditioning was an area that Sigmon was working on this past season and said that it was more mental than physical this past season.

"His is going to be more physical and make them better," Sigmon said. "The team is going to benefit from it and they just need to buy into it and be 100 percent for it."

Harden, who is originally from Valparaiso, Ind., was Mr. Basketball of Indiana in 1982 before attending UK and comes from a basketball family.

"My father played for Indiana University from 1960-1964 and went on to coach college and high school basketball," Harden said.

His father eventually went on to coach at the collegiate level at the University of Denver and while a high school coach, took a player under his tutelage and transformed him into a coach. That man was Dave Sanders, the coach who was killed in the Columbine shooting in 1999.

"My father helped get him a basketball scholarship and get the Columbine coaching job," Harden said. "Watching the ESPY awards and hearing his wife talk about how much of an impact my father had on him, it was really touching."

Harden said he wants to be competitive, but is more focused on making an impact on the players and for them to look back on their high school days and be proud of the accomplishments they made.

Harden's faith means a lot to him and when he drove into Williamstown the first church he saw was Williamstown Baptist Church. Harden asked for Pastor Darrell Morgan to give a prayer for the team at the end of their meeting.

"My faith in God and my relationship with Him has helped me through so many things," Harden said. "I thank Him, the administration for giving me this opportunity and I wanted to show my respect and let them know that's a part of my life."

Harden will be meeting with the parents of the players this week to introduce himself and allow them to know the kind of coach he is going to be to their children.

The city also received $6,000 from Williamstown Kiwanis and more than $7,000 in fund-raisers, business leaders, community leaders and individuals. ## INSPECTION PERIOD FOR THE PROPERTY TAX ASSESSMENT ROLL

The Grant County real property tax roll will be opened for inspection from May 7 through May 21, 2012. Under the supervision of the property valuation administrator or one of the deputies, any person may inspect the tax roll. This is the January 1, 2012, assessment on which state, county, and school taxes for 2012 will be due about September 15, 2012. Any taxpayer desiring to appeal an assessment on real property made by the PVA must first request a conference with the PVA or a designated deputy. The conference may be held prior to or during the inspection period. Any taxpayer still aggrieved by an assessment on real property, after the conference with the PVA or designated deputy, may appeal to the county board of assessment appeals.

The taxpayer can appeal his assessment by filing in person or sending a letter or other written petition stating the reasons for appeal, identifying the property and stating the taxpayer's opinion of the fair cash value of the property. The appeal must be filed with the county clerk's office no later than one work day following the conclusion of the inspection period.

A taxpayer failing to appeal to the county board of assessment appeals, or failing to appear before the board, either in person or by designated representative, will not be eligible to appeal directly to the Kentucky Board of Tax Appeals. - (2) He must file a written protest directly with the Department of Revenue, Office of Property Valuation within 30 days from the date of the notice of assessment.

Anyone that has any gold jewelry lying in a jewelry box, listen up! Gold is trading at over $1,600 per ounce. That's as high as it's ever been, and we want to buy it. What's a coin show doing buying gold you ask? Well, these days, it seems everyone is buying gold. But how much is it really worth and how do you know if you're getting a fair price?

Let me share with you what the other guys don't want you to know. Pure gold is what the markets are based on. Today's market, as I write this article, is $1,642.36 per ounce. Now that's what the big refineries pay. But those refineries don't buy directly from the public. Rather, they buy from companies that accumulate volume by buying from the public. Then, contracts are negotiated with the refiners to sell to them in large quantities. Those companies sell to the refineries for about 90 percent of the market price. So, to make a profit, they have to make sure to pay less than 90 percent for gold. The difference between what they pay and the market price is their gross profit. Of course, they also have to cover the cost of doing business, which would include advertising, labor, taxes, office space, insurance, utilities, etc.

So how much are they actually paying for gold, compared to the advertised market price? Well, during an undercover project preformed by the National Coin Collectors Association, it's a lot less than you might think. We visited a number of jewelry stores, coin shops and traveling buying events to see what we would be offered for our gold. We were surprised to see the wide spectrum of prices we were offered. The gold jewelry we took to these businesses was actually worth just over $300. The most we were offered was $180 (60 percent of the market price) and the least was a measly $42 (14 percent of the market price). $42 for $300 worth of gold seemed like a rip off to us. After that eye opening test, we decided to start offering a service where we buy gold from the public. The response has been overwhelmingly positive. We pay a fair price for the gold, which still allows us to make a profit. The customer can go away happy, knowing they received a fair price.

So if you have gold jewelry just lying around, please bring it in to us. We will examine it, weigh it and quote a fair price based on that day's market price. We have negotiated a contract with the number one refinery in the United States. This enables us to pay you more. Our service is fun and it's free. What we offer you is what you get, with no hidden charges like some other companies. If you choose to sell your gold to us, we will pay you on the spot. If you choose not to sell, then that's fine too. There is never any pressure to sell to us, ever!

We have been hosting these shows since 1995, and come to town about once a year. Although we are looking for scrap precious metals, coins are our forte. That's what we are known for and what we love. Whether you have a single coin or an entire collection, we would love to see it. We also buy paper currency and gold and silver bullion.

Charlie Conley has been a volunteer with the Dry Ridge Fire Department for 30 years. He is the department's chief safety officer.

VOLUNTEER

Department Chief Tom Jump.

“It was a scary moment,” Conley said. “We got trapped on the roof and that was before we had a ladder truck. We had to wait one-by-one by the (city’s) electric truck to be taken down and when I touched the ground I tapped it and was happy to be off the roof. It was like walking on a sponge.”

Not a month later, another fire broke out in downtown Williamstown as the building that housed Tony’s Barbershop went up in flames on Dec. 25, 1983. Frigid temperatures caused the water to freeze almost on impact and make what Conley described as something seen out of a Disney movie.

The fire went on for 28 hours.

“I stayed the whole time,” Conley said.

After washing the ambulance, Conley headed back into the Dry Ridge Fire House and viewed a video of those fires, as well as other fire and firefighters from the 1980s and early 1990s, including his two sons, Chuck and Kevin.

“This makes you feel young watching this again and reliving the old days,” Conley said.

One of the hardest moments in Conley’s career was when his son, Chuck, died suddenly from an aneurism in his abdomen on his way into work for the Pigeon Forge Fire Department in 2006.

“That was the longest four-hour drive I had ever been on,” Conley said. “As soon as we got there I wanted to go home. It was tough.”

The firefighters at DRFD have a sense of brotherhood and with all of the years built up, Conley receives jokes about his age, including being asked if he was on the department when they used horses and buggies.

“They think I was here when things were written in stone,” Conley said.

Jump, who has worked with Conley for 23 of the 33 years on the DRFD, said he sees the dedication that Conley provides for the department.

“Charlie puts all he has into this job and he always has,” Jump said. “I have known him since he started here and this sounds cliché, but he puts his whole heart into this job.”

Assistant chief Joe Jamison wrote a letter for Conley to be nominated. In the letter he stated, “Charlie constantly gives of himself to the department, not just in answering calls, but in helping to train the younger firefighters, donating his time as a welder to fix whatever needs to be fixed, and never asks for a dime.”

Conley has received eight out of nine possible awards during his time with the department and displays them proudly at home along with his collection of toy fire trucks.

As for how long he will continue working for the DRFD, Conley didn’t have any thoughts of retiring.

“I’ll probably work till the day I die,” Conley said. “It’s a lot of fun and these guys are like family to me and they will do anything to help.”

FIRE

included how much money the fire dues brought in and what that funding was used for.

The chiefs could ask the magistrates to increase the amount of the fees each year, if needed. However, any increase would be up to the discretion of the magistrates.

The fate of two other separate taxing districts are still up in the air.

The fiscal court initially was supposed to discuss and potentially vote on a second reading of an ambulance taxing district that would help create funding for more ambulance service throughout the county when magistrates met April 16.

However, the item was left off the agenda.

If passed, each magistrate would choose a member within their district to be part of a newly created ambulance taxing district board.

The board would have the responsibility to set the rate for the taxing district, but the ordinance states that the initial rate would be set at 1.5 cents per $100 assessed property or about $15 for a home valued at $100,000.

“The ambulance ordinance is tabled indefinitely, and only by majority vote of the magistrates may it be placed on a future agenda, and even then, the second reading must be published in the newspaper,” said Grant County Judge-Executive Darrell Link.

The Grant County Fire Chiefs’ Association, who believe the ambulance tax proposed by the fiscal court will not provide sufficient funding, has proposed an emergency services tax to help generate revenue for both fire and ambulance services.

After initially proposing a tax rate of 11 cents per $100 assessed value, the association has discussed dropping the rate to 6.5 to 7.5 cents, which would cost taxpayers $65 to $75 on a $100,000 home.

Despite the fire dues proposal, Crittenden Fire Chief Lee Burton said the departments are continuing their fight for the emergency services taxing district.

“The flat dues tax that the judge is imposing is, at best, a stop-gap measure,” he said. “It’s like a dam that everybody knows needs to be fixed. When you get a leak, somebody puts a finger in it and says that will do for right now. You still have to fix it. It’s just trying to get everybody to agree on how to fix it.”

The departments have been going door to door asking residents to sign a petition to get the taxing district on the November ballot.

The departments have about 350 signatures, as of May 1.

If the fiscal court does not permit the group to only collect 100 signatures, the association would be required to get the petition signed by 25 percent of the average number of registered voters in the taxing district who voted in the last four general elections.

“We’re hoping we’re looking at between 1,600 and 2,000 signatures,” Burton said.

Burton said the petition needs to be submitted 180 days from the time the chiefs received their first signature.

The fire chiefs’ association plans to present the petition to the fiscal court and the circuit clerk in June.

“The fiscal court has put together something (fire dues) that will tide us over until one way or the other we get this tax question answered by the populace,” Burton said.
